Join us on this exciting journey of understanding as Dr. George shows us how an adult's early experience with their primary caregivers and the nature of these early attachment relationships impacts adult relationships, overall defensive functioning, and caregiving ability. Her use of video demonstrations and clinical examples derived from the administration of the Adult Attachment Projective Picture System and the Caregiving Interview brings this work to life. An understanding of these concepts has profound implications for treatment of adult clients, assessment of parenting skills, and helping adults become better caregivers.

Dr. George asks that participants of this lecture have either a very thorough understanding of the child attachment literature including the Strange Situation or has seen her previous lecture on Child Attachment. For instructions on how you can purchase a copy of Dr. George's prior presentation Attachment: Theory and Applications of Child Attachment in Clinical Practice please contact BIPR at info@bipr.com or visit our website at www.bipr.org.
